SCADA Factory Testing for a Large BESS

In December, the ACE team successfully conducted Integrated Factory Acceptance Testing (iFAT) at our workshop for a SCADA system developed for a grid-connected Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) in Australia.

This significant milestone involved comprehensive SCADA and Control System testing of the BESS to ensure robust performance and compliance with industry standards.

The system is complex and comprises a variety of components including inverters, transformers, relays, battery management systems, power quality meters, breakers etc. However, the seamless collaboration between our dedicated team and the client's technical representatives was crucial in successfully troubleshooting and validating all aspects of the system.
